DIFFICULTIES FOR TOURISTS IN EUROPE

The Hague, April 24.—Thousands of American tourists, who are expected to visit Europe this summer, will be disappointed if they look forward to all the comforts of the days before the war.

This verdict has been expressed by The Associated Press correspondent by many much-harassed Americans who, in overcrowded trains between stops at overcrowded hotels, have run the gamut of passport bureau, frontier controls and police registration offices, institutions which still prevail in many countries, only a slightly less degree than during the war.

Passports, and passport visas, are necessary everywhere. Even in the five-hour trip from The Hague, Holland, to Brussels, Belgium, requires days of preparation, and the days generally lengthen into weeks if one expresses the most extraordinary whim to make a round trip, or several round trips.

An American, for instance, having obtained in the United States a Dutch visa which permits him to land in Holland for a brief stay desires to go to Brussels—just five hours away. On arrival in Holland he has had to register with the police, securing an identity card, permitting him to have a broad card, etc. (for bread is still rationed in many countries).

Desiring to go to Belgium, by the first train to go to his own location or consulate, to have his American passport amended so as to be valid in Belgium. This done after a solemn oath that it is necessary to go to Belgium, the traveler goes to Belgium, the consulate back for fear of upsetting, and went around by way of the Dutch frontier.
